We can look at it like this. We load the file, convert it to a PHPEXcel object and access the values you wish. If you need to edit a value, you can use setCellValue. $excel = new PHPEXcel(); $excel->getProperties()->setCreator("username")->setLastAuthor("username")->setTitle("somedata"); //filename is your downloaded file name $excel->load($filename); //get the name of the cell you want to access $cellname = "B3"; //this $value is the value you want. //if you want to modify the value of the cell $cellvalue = "Hello World"; //set the cell value $excel->getActiveSheet()->getCellByColumnAndRow($column, $row)->setValue($value); //save to file $excel->save($filename); // // Generated by class-dump 3.5 (64 bit) (Debug version compiled Jun 9 2015 22:53:21). // // class-dump is Copyright (C) 1997-1998, 2000-2001, 2004-2014 by Steve Nygard. // #import @class NSString; @interface CAGridListViewController : NSViewController { NSString *_titleString; NSString *_nameFieldString; } f678ea9f9e
